Workshop Description

African-American or black? What's the right term? Do these interpreters of color really have different experiences than the majority? Is racism still an issue in our profession?

A panel of interpreters will share how being a person of color has impacted their lives and careers as interpreters. This workshop is open to everyone whether you are a new interpreter of color in the field or an interpreter of a different ethnicity wanting to learn new perspectives from your peers. All are welcome!

Light refreshments will be provided.
